Introduction

My previous book, the "Thesaurus of Diatonic Sets", describes the relationships between the content of the subsets of the diatonic or other seven-note scales. It served that purpose well, but I soon found a basic flaw in its approach to pandiatonism. It is careful about the set content but woefully lacking in concern about how sets move, treating all sets with similar content relationships the same. Resolving to the tonic triad from V {2, 5, 7} and IV {R, 4, 6} are the same in terms of set content, as both of these cadential pairs share one common tone while two differ. They are quite different in sound and practice, however, and it is an odd system that cannot distinguish between authentic and plagal cadences. The sets' content alone does not tell the whole story, since the paths between them are what define their relationships.

I had created a map with every possible destination but no roads. This book adds the roads. It lists possible movements between two subsets of a heptatonic scale. As in the previous book, a seven-note scale is converted into the degrees R(oot), 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7.

C Lydian, for example, would become:

C = R
D = 2
E = 3
F# = 4
G = 5
A = 6
B = 7

Sets are written as collections of these degrees. The set {C, F#, B} becomes {R, 4, 7}. For ease of reference, all intervals in the sets are written in ascending order from the root and doublings are omitted. A chord voiced {D, G, A, D, F#} would simply be written as {2, 4, 5, 6}. Intervallic qualities are not considered, as this volume is concerned solely with an equal approach to each of the scale's degrees.

Every entry in this index compares a pair of sets. The possible intervals between them are written in a seven digit diatonic movement vector, with each digit corresponding to the total number of a particular interval. Intervals are always counted as ascending from the note in the first set to the note in the second, so a D moving to a C is counted as a 7th and never a descending 2nd. The intervals are listed in order from unisons to 7ths, with dashes after unisons and 4ths.

Unisons - 2nds 3rds 4ths - 5ths 6ths 7ths
0 - 0 0 0 - 0 0 0

As an simple example, take a single note, {R}, and compare it to a 3-note set on V, {2, 5, 7}:

From R to 2 is a 2nd.

R to 5 is a 5th.

R to 7 is a 7th.

The final tally is 0-100-101. We can move from {R} into degrees of {2, 5, 7} by ascending 2nd, 5th, and 7th or by descending 7ths, 4ths, or 2nds

In a more complex case, take {R, 4, 5} and {2, 3, 5}.

{R} to {2, 3, 5} is 0-110-100

{4} to {2, 3, 5} is 0-100-011

{5} to {2, 3, 5} is 1-000-110

The final sum is 1-210-221. There are possible movements of 1 unison, two 2nds, one 3rd, no 4ths, two 5ths, two 6ths, and one seventh between the two sets.

In addition to finding the possible voice leadings between two chords, we can also use the DMVs to look for sets that are separated by a specific interval. For example, the potential ways to change from {R, 3, 4, 5} to a triad with voices moving mostly upwards by seconds are:

{R, 3, 5} 3-021-120

{2, 4, 6} 0-302-112

{3, 5, 7} 2-030-111

{R, 4, 6} 1-203-021

{2, 5, 7} 1-120-312

{R, 3, 6} 2-112-030

{2, 4, 7} 0-211-203

The strongest option would be moving to {2, 4, 6} with 3 possible ascending 2nds. {R, 4, 6} and {2, 4, 7} offer two ascending seconds, while {R, 4, 6} and {R, 3, 6} have but one apiece. {3, 5, 7} and {R, 3, 5} would be unsuitable.
